

IRISH PICKETS DENY THEY FEAR ARREST

Scout Claim That "Show" At Embassy Was Called Off Because Jail Yawned.

to violate the Constitution or international laws," said Mrs. Thomas Corliss, of New York, one of the leaders for Irish freedom, this morning. "We feel we are acting within our Constitutional rights as long as we are orderly, and the picketing has been orderly."

Colby Irish Friend.
"We have no intention of embarrassing the State Department, and especially Secretary of State Colby," continued Mrs. Corliss. "He has been a staunch friend of the Irish cause. It was Mr. Colby who introduced Mrs. Hanna Sheehy Sheffington to America when he presided at the monster mass meeting in New York after the Easter rebellion and at another huge gathering which denounced Great Britain's policy of handling the Irish situation."

"We do think, though, that it would be more gallant to be concerned over the life of a nation than to be concerned over hospitable courtesy to an embassy."
Mrs. Corliss today announced the receipt of many telegrams and telephone messages from various parts of the United States from friends of Irish freedom who have congratulated the women and girls for their picketing and other work in behalf of the cause.

Offered Liberty Bonds.
One of these telegrams came from J. Howard, of Omaha, Neb. It read: "Five Liberty bonds in the United States National Bank at Omaha, Neb., belonging to the undersigned hoary-headed son of toil are available to assist in defraying expenses of your righteous campaign to forestall the campaign of the British to massacre the Irish people."

Charging that the cable from England telling of the confiscation of 3,000 tons of machine guns and ammunition was dastardly propaganda, Miss Kathleen O'Brennan said such statements were an insult to the intelligence of the American people. It is preposterous to suppose that the Irish boys and men could have gotten hold of all this ammunition and the machine guns. They would take a year to manufacture, with the Irish being constantly under the surveillance of the British."

Doubts Talk of Massacre.
Mrs. Anne Riley Hale, who saw Senator Moses, said he was very sympathetic always with Ireland and the demand for Irish freedom. He said he had voted for the Gerry resolution to the peace treaty.
"I am personally skeptical of your statement that there will be a massacre of the Irish on Monday," said Senator Moses. "I could not conceive that any nation of Christian Europe would perpetrate such a thing. Senator France has come to me most perturbed about the whole affair. Mrs. Hale then suggested to Senator Moses that as a member of the Foreign Relations Committee of the Senate he go to the British embassy and tell how the American people would feel if such a thing took place."

Senator Moses said he would do so if he believed there was any real danger. Then Mrs. Hale asked: "Supposing the massacre takes place on Monday. How will you feel if you do not act?"

Only One Man Interested.
Senator Moses stated that his friends had gone away from the British embassy, but Mrs. Hale suggested that he go in his official capacity. However, he did not commit himself, or say he would. Mrs. Hale also saw Senators McCumber, Kirby and France, who did most of the talking. Senator France was genuinely interested.

Woman Wills Beer To Relatives and Friends Who Attend Her Funeral

NEW YORK, April 4.—Beer as the "last treat" was provided for relatives and friends by Mrs. Margaretta Apman, who died three weeks ago, in her will filed yesterday in the Brooklyn surrogate's court.

Mrs. Apman leaves an estate valued at $22,000 to relatives in Germany and this country. In providing for the treat, she said: "I direct that all my relatives and friends who attend my funeral are not to pay for the use of the coaches. This expense is to be paid out of my estate. I also direct that all my relatives and friends who attend the funeral be taken to Niederstein's Hotel, Middle Village, Long Island, and that they be served with lunch, coffee and beer at my expense."

Her two nephews were appointed to carry out this provision of her will.

BAPTISTS TO BOOST PASTORS' SALARIES

Drive for $100,000,000 During Week of April 25-May 2 to Be Outlined Tomorrow.

"Men will never be drawn to the ministry by the lure of its luxurious living, and the church can never make sufficient appeal to its best young men until it gives a fair recognition of the value of their services."

That is what Dr. J. Y. Altchison, of New York, general director of the new world movement of Northern Baptists, has to say regarding the salary basis of Baptist ministers. A living wage for preachers is one of the aims of the new world movement, for which a $100,000,000 campaign will be waged from April 25 to May 2.

The entire plan of the new world movement, its aims and needs, will be outlined by Dr. Altchison at a big denominational meeting to be held in the Second Baptist Church tomorrow. This will be the first of a series of Baptist conferences to be held in about 100 cities of the United States during the coming two weeks, at which plans for the $100,000,000 campaign will be discussed.

Several hundred women representing twenty-two Baptist churches will be present. Mrs. O. E. Howe, president of the Woman's Baptist Missionary Association of the District of Columbia, will have charge of the meeting.

In addition to Dr. Altchison, other leaders of the Northern Baptist new world movement will speak. Among these will be Mrs. James Madison Pratt, officer of the American Foreign Mission Society, who is to remain in Washington during the week to plan for the local campaign.

As a result of a recent survey, it was found that the average salary of Baptist ministers in 1918 was $1,000. Eight preachers out of every 100 in the Baptist ministry (less than 700 out of 8,823 ordained ministers in the Northern States are receiving as much as $1,500 a year.)

ROCKEFELLER COMING TO AID CHURCH DRIVE
John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and the other members of the "flying squadron" touring the country in the interests of the interchurch world movement, will arrive in Washington late tomorrow afternoon to attend a keynote dinner at the Washington Hotel.

There will be twenty-five in the party, including Dr. John R. Mott, who directed the united war work campaign in 1918; Dr. Earl Taylor, of New York; Dr. John Y. Altchison, of Boston, and Dr. William Hiram Foulkes, of Philadelphia.

Among the guests at the dinner will be Speaker Gillett, Secretary Daniels of the Navy, Gen. John J. Pershing, U. S. A., Senator Harding of Ohio, Senator Wadsworth of New York, Senator Spencer of Missouri, and Robert Lansing, former Secretary of State. Mr. Lansing will preside and introduce the speakers, who will be Mr. Rockefeller, Dr. Mott, and Dr. Taylor. Governor Milliken of Maine and J. Elwood Cox of North Carolina are among the out-of-town guests who will attend.

Pomp Marks Graduation of German Officers

Militarism still prevails in Germany. This photograph, taken at Potsdam during the ceremonies which followed the recent graduation of under-officers at the German military academy, is reminiscent of pre-war days. Prince Friedrich Seigmund is the officer wearing the uniform of the "Death's Head Hussars." With him are his wife and child.

temple to fever or any placating of the "malignant power."

From this you gather that, wherever else real worth may be located, it is surely to be found in science, in the intelligence that grows in the brain of man, as the ambergris grows in the whale's insides.

The American public paid Barnum a fortune for the pleasure of looking at a white elephant, no more interesting than an ordinary elephant.

Rulers of Siam insisted always on having a sacred white elephant near the palace. They thought that was religion. It was really the religion of the little boy that keeps a couple of toads and a garter snake, if his mother will let him.

The public also paid Barnum for the privilege of looking upon his "What Is It?", a miserable creature with the frontal-angle of a marmoset, forehead one-eighth of an inch high.

The deformed idiot was "worth" half a million dollars. Much more than Shakespeare, Milton, and Dante combined.

The Empress Catherine of Russia was one of the first rulers to be vaccinated against the smallpox and it took. She was grateful to the little boy from whose arm was taken the smallpox virus injected into her body. She thought it impossible to exaggerate the "value" of that little drop of poison, so she created that boy "the Duke of Smolensk."

The same Empress bought all the books and fixings in the house of Voltaire, at Ferney, when he died, his paintings, his books with the interesting notes on the margins. Lenin or Trotsky should dig them up and give them a special place of honor in some museum if they haven't done it already.

Probably that Empress attached more importance to the poison that protected her unimportant system against smallpox than to Voltaire's entire life time. So "what is value?"

The other day, on the way to Cuba, there passed through New York City a gamecock "worth" seventeen thousand dollars. When he gets to Cuba, he will have sharp steel spurs fastened to the stumps of his natural spurs. And while crowds gesticulate, applaud and bet, he will fight until some other rooster puts a steel shaft through his brain. After that he will be worth not seventeen thousand dollars, but seventeen cents—too muscular and tough except for soup. Even so, he will be really "worth" more as a dead rooster than Caesar as a dead ruler.

We wonder how the Hottentot likes his wife five feet wide at the hips. We wonder how the Turk can take any pleasure in the society of a lady whom he has bought?

We wonder especially at the seventeen thousand dollar value on the fighting rooster.

Yet we erect expensive monuments to men that, among human beings, are worth no more than the fighting rooster among animals.

We shall be better fitted for criticizing the price put on fighting roosters, and the value attached to Hottentot Venuses, when we build more monuments to thinking men, and fewer to mere fighters.

GLASS QUILTS N. P. A.

demand for the surrender of all arms by the workers also led to fighting, it was said.

Communist Ultimatum.

(NOTE: Previous advices from Berlin had stated that telephone communication with the Ruhr district had been interrupted by the fighting between government forces and the Reds, during which telephone lines had been destroyed by shell fire. It was possible, however, that the information from Essen was relayed by both wireless and telephone.)

A report was received from Muelheim that the Communists had issued another ultimatum threatening to destroy all industries in the Ruhr district if the advance of the reichwehr was not halted.

Instead of improving as a result of the agreement negotiated by Herr Severing, representative of the Ebert government, and the Ruhr workers, the situation appears to be getting more critical, it was announced by Chancellor Mueller in a statement to the German press.

Recruiting Troops.

"We had hoped that the Reds would lay down their arms, but the information at hand indicates that they have not done so," said Chancellor Mueller. "The workers at Muelheim instead of giving up their weapons began recruiting more troops."

"Hamborn has been plundered by armed bands. At Dusseldorf the workers were apparently willing to give up their arms, but the disarmament decree has not yet been enforced there."

"The government's military measures were delayed by the refusal of the French to give the necessary permission to send reichswehr into the Ruhr. If the present situation continues for a few more days, I fear that it will react upon all of Germany."

"Dr. Paul Levy, one of the main leaders of Communists in the Ruhr, has announced that the communists have been insistent in demanding the recall of General von Watter, commander of the government forces in Westphalia, but this is impossible." Chancellor Mueller said that he no longer feared a new general strike at Berlin.

WILSON IN TOUCH WITH FRENCH-GERMAN TILT

President Wilson is giving his attention to the situation developing between France and Germany concerning Germany's alleged violation of the treaty, it was learned today.

The State Department is receiving frequent reports from Paris. These reports are being forwarded to the President.

State Department officials as yet are not prepared to let it be known what action this Government will take, if any, in the event France carries out her reported threat to occupy important cities of Westphalia unless German troops are withdrawn from the Ruhr district within twenty-four hours. It is considered likely that the only action this Government will take if the situation becomes more acute is the granting of its moral support to the supreme council.

Officials here so far give no indication that they regard the situation as serious. Unofficial dispatches from the Ruhr refer to the situation as a "squabble" between France and Germany.

It is believed probable that the allied governments will receive protests from Germany against further occupation by France of German territory. The United States may get a protest, it is predicted.

There is no belief here that France and Germany will come to armed conflict over the situation.

son was in Belfast, ostensibly on a visit. Field Marshal Wilson was expected to arrive in Dublin today.

Great stores of artillery have been concentrated at strategic points and throughout Saturday big shipments of ammunition arrived from England for the troops.

Take No Chances.

Whether the radical element of the Sinn Fein would attempt a revolt in view of the drastic military precautions that have been taken was considered doubtful in many quarters. But the military authorities were not taking any chances. They declared that they would be prepared for anything—either peace or war.

The hope was held out that Easter week would pass quietly and that the Sinn Fein extremists would content themselves with isolated attacks against barracks of the Royal Irish constabulary.

In addition to the plans which have been made to suppress revolution, extraordinary precautions are being taken against assassination of the British officials.

Detachments of soldiers patrolled the roads leading to the vice royal lodge and barbed wire entanglements were erected. Every hay cart that appeared was searched for hidden assassins or arms. Soldiers jabbed their bayonets through the hay on the wagons before they were allowed to proceed.

Trouble at Jail.

In the meantime fresh troubles have developed at the Mount Joy jail, which is crowded with Sinn Fein prisoners. The prisoners went upon a hunger strike and smashed everything breakable in their cells. They insisted that they should be treated as political prisoners instead of ordinary criminals and became so threatening that all were shackled.

With preparations for war on every side the political aspect of the Irish situation came sharply to the fore with the expression of opinion that Sir Nevill MacReady, the new commander-in-chief of the British forces, will inaugurate a new policy.

Force having failed to bring a settlement, it is possible that Sir Nevill will adopt conciliation. If such a policy is to be inaugurated, it is believed that it will begin with the removal of the martial law restrictions.

CANADIAN IRISH CHIEF WELCOMED BY BRITISH

LONDON, April 4.—The government believes that all cable reports show that the appointment of a Canadian to be chief secretary for Ireland is enthusiastically welcomed throughout the British empire. The chief Sir Hamner Grenwood, the newly appointed chief secretary today.

"We hope this will be a sign to every American of the government's keen wish to bring about order and prosperity in Ireland."

and the release of the numerous Sinn Fein prisoners arrested during the past few weeks. In this connection it is reported that Lord French will resign as lord lieutenant within a few weeks.

Secret Activity.

There is much secret activity on the part of the Sinn Fein. Whether they attempt to rise by force of arms this week or not, they have already planned to issue another proclamation when the new home rule bill becomes effective, stating that a republic exists in twenty-five southern Irish counties.

Several residences and two business houses were raided yesterday at Limerick and documents were seized, but no arrests were made.

HOOVER MAY HEAD AN INDEPENDENT TICKET

DETROIT, April 4.—The possibility that Herbert Hoover may be asked to head an independent ticket if he fails to obtain the Republican nomination was indicated last night by Elbert H. Fowler, a Detroit lawyer and chief Hoover man in Michigan.

"We expect to hold a separate convention in Chicago before the Republican national convention, to give a demonstration of Mr. Hoover's strength with the people," he said. "I am a strong advocate of such a proposition of calling there Hoover adherents from every State in the country, and letting the old crowd know they cannot go ahead and repeat the tactics of 1912 with impunity."

"I understand plans are now being perfected for such a convention. Of course, we won't attempt to give Hoover a nomination then, but it will let those who refuse to recognize his strength know what they may expect."

TURK NATIONALISTS OCCUPY ADA BAZAR

Town East of Constantinople Is Near British Port of Entry on Bosphorus.

LONDON, April 4.—Reports from Constantinople state that Ada Bazar, a small town directly east of the city, was occupied by the Turkish nationalist army early last week. This town is only twenty-three miles from Ismid, the British port of entry in western Asia Minor.

Railway communication between the Bosphorus and the interior has been cut by detachments of British, who burned the large bridge south of Bilejik after getting out all their Indian troops, which had been guarding the line. British headquarters is at Ismid, and the protective area is restricted largely to districts within range of the naval guns.

While the British were repairing the bridge near Bilejik, nationalists directed a heavy machine gun fire upon them, but their aim was so bad there was only one casualty. After crossing the bridge the British battalions burned it to check the nationalists, whose game seems to be to force the allied troops to pursue them into the interior, and keep up guerrilla warfare, rather than take the offensive.

OFFICERS RAID SALOONS.

LAWRENCE, Mass., April 4.—Disguised as laborers, uncouth in looks and shabby in attire, fifteen revenue officers descended unexpectedly on a score or more local saloons last night, successfully raiding five of them and one garage. Liquor was confiscated in all of them, and several arrests were made.

The Aftermath of Flu

This is No. 1 of a series of advertisements, prepared by a competent physician, explaining how certain diseases which attack the air passages—such as Pneumonia, Influenza, Whooping Cough, Measles or even a long continued Cold—often leave these organs in an inflamed, congested state, thus affording a favorable foothold for invading germs. And how Vicks' VapoRub may be of value in this condition.

Your doctor will impress upon you that following recovery from the active stage of influenza, there often remains an inflamed, congested condition of the air passages—throat, larynx, bronchial tubes and lungs.

Frequently the cough hangs on—soreness of the chest persists—you take cold easily and there may be obstinate catarrh. This condition is slow to clear up and if neglected may favor the development of pneumonia, or later on, serious disease of the lungs.

Such cases should continue under the care of their physician—should exercise moderately in the open air—eat plenty of wholesome food—avoid overwork and sudden chills.

Nightly applications of Vicks' VapoRub may help nature to complete the process of repair. Because Vicks acts locally by stimulation thru the skin to draw out the inflammation, attract the blood away from the congested spots and relieve the cough. In addition, the medicinal ingredients of Vicks are vaporized by the body heat. These vapors are breathed in all night long, thus bringing the medication to bear directly upon the inflamed areas.

Vicks should be rubbed in over the throat and chest until the skin is red—then spread on thickly and covered with hot flannel cloths. Leave the clothing loose around the neck and the bed clothes arranged in the form of a funnel so the vapors arising may be freely inhaled. If the cough is annoying, swallow a small bit of Vicks the size of a pea.
